Former Guymon Coach Takes Ulysses Job

Ulysses High School announces the hiring of Tim Hofferber as the new head girls basketball coach. He will replace Eric Flaton after a 5-14 season in 2012.

Hofferber has been the Guymon High School head girls basketball coach for the past 6 years and compiled a record of 67 wins and 78 losses. His teams were the Class 4A Regional Consolation Champions in 2008, and won back to back District Championships in 2009 and 2010. Hofferber was twice named the Guymon Daily Herald Area Coach of the Year, once in 2008 and again in 2010. Also, in 2010 he was named as the K101 Bowl West All-Stars Girls Basketball Coach. Hofferber served as the Class 4A Board Member to the Oklahoma Girls Basketball Coaches Association from 2008 to 2011.

"I am very excited about joining the team at Ulysses High School. The administration has great vision for the program and Tiger athletics has a rich tradition of winning. This community has a lot of school pride and the facilities here at Ulysses are some of the best in this region."

Hofferber's new coaching job will have a couple of things that will be very familiar to him, since both his former team and his new team share the same mascot "Tigers" and the same school colors "Orange and Black". "It's all about the kids. We will put together a program that will foster a championship effort and a championship attitude, so they can be winners both on and off the court."
