Woman Kills Husband With A Wrench

A woman has been accused of using a wrench to beat her common-law husband who was found dead a week later. Dalhart police said Thursday that Lenora Pruitt did not seek medical help for Cody Freeman. Sgt. David Conner says Pruitt was charged with murder and bond is $100,000. Jail records did not list an attorney for Pruitt, who was arrested Monday. Conner says police are investigating why the couple apparently argued June 15 before their sons, ages 7 and 4. Pruitt allegedly hit Freeman in the head with a socket wrench. Pruitt and the boys were home with Freeman until she found him dead June 22. Police say Freeman apparently had a brain injury but could still move and talk. The children are with relatives in Clovis, N.M.
