Former Saint Jones Leaves K State

Senior guard Jeremy Jones has left the Kansas State basketball program.

New Kansas State coach Bruce Weber said in a statement Thursday that he had several discussions with Jones over the past few weeks, and Jones made the decision to leave.

The 6-foot-2 Jones played in 20 games for former coach Frank Martin last season, averaging 3.1 points and 8.2 minutes. He scored a season-high 12 points against Oklahoma in January.

Jones transferred to Kansas State in May 2011 from Seward County (Kan.) Community College.
