Seward Volleyball Spreads Holiday Cheer to Stepping Stone

The Seward County Volleyball team got into the act of giving early in the Holiday season Saturday morning as they made a trip to the Stepping Stone Shelter to help decorate for Christmas. The Lady Saints set up Christmas trees, decorated the inside with lights and figurines, and put their decorative and warm touches upon each inch of the shelter. Freshman outside hitter Annelise Sanchez said of her experience "Christmas is one of my favorite times of year and to be able to know that I could put a smile on someone who is less fortunate face during the Holiday's, makes it that much better. Everyone on the team had a really good time and we hope that the people at Stepping Stone enjoy the decorations." The Seward coaches echoed the thoughts of their players as Assistant Coach Emilyn Jordan said "we thought it would be a really good time to lend a helping hand. Many of us take for granted the things that we have on a daily basis and for our players to be able to see how good that they have it and to be able to give back and make someone else's Christmas a warm one, is something that they will never forget."
