Cauble Named to National Task Force
TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) - A southwest Kansas member of the State Board of Education has been chosen to participate in a national discussion of rural education issues.

Sally Cauble of Liberal will serve on a task force of the National Association of State Boards of Education studying rural and frontier education issues.

The panel will review policy recommendations that will be made to Congress and the U.S. Department of Education that will address issues specific to rural schools. The focus will be on helping improve low-performing schools.

Cauble has served on the Kansas board since 2007. She represents District 5, which includes approximately the western third of Kansas.
