WATCH "GHOST PHONE" & WIN 5 ACRES IN TAOS, NEW MEXICO

If you're interested in land in Taos, New Mexico, now is the time to buy--a ticket--to the movie Ghost Phone, a dark and romantic comedy showing December 6th-19th, 2013 in participating Mitchell Theatres. Every movie-goer who sees it has a chance to win five acres in Taos, New Mexico. While other "Hollywood Movies" rely on big star power to drive their films, Taos Land & Film Company (TLFC) is the "Little Engine" that could. They have great actors in Ghost Phone, and they also have a star the Hollywood Studios don't have—land in the famous artist's colony of Taos. Visit our blog for more details.

The land sits atop the mystical mountaintop of Cerro Montoso, home of the historic Taos Talking Pictures Filmmaker's Colony. Filmmaker Jeffrey F. Jackson is no stranger to land giveaways, awarding five-acre land grants to innovative filmmakers during the original run of the well-respected Talking Picture Film Festival. Past winners include Chris Eyre and David Riker.
