Governor Candidates To Debate

The two major-party candidates for Kansas governor have agreed to take part in a televised debate next week.

Republican U.S. Sen. Sam Brownback and Democratic state Sen. Tom Holland said Tuesday they will debate Oct. 7 on KWCH-TV in Wichita.

The event will also be carried on the station's regional affiliates in Dodge City, Goodland, Hays and Salina.

Brownback and Holland have debated just once so far, on Sept. 11 at the Kansas State Fair in Hutchinson. Their campaigns have been negotiating schedules to coordinate additional debates before the Nov. 2 election.
